

Over the past six years, pushed by the desire of getting to know new cultures and people, I had the chance to explore different international academic and business environments in countries such as Italy, Australia, the Netherlands, Germany, Colombia and Spain.

I have a proactive approach which encourages me to bring ideas to optimise the status quo and I have always been eager to learn and explore subjects from different fields. My interests span from blockchain technology to backpacking passing by environmentally sustainability and design.

I am currently enrolled at a Master's programme in Digital Strategy thought by Politecnico di Milano. The Master allows me learn user-centred design-driven methodologies to provide innovative marketing solutions especially concerning the digital transformation. I recently developed a personal website with some of the projects I worked on.

The combination of my studies, life experiences, and previous jobs reinforced my communication and problem-solving skills, adaptability to new environments, and the ability to work both in teams and individually.

I am looking for to the next step in my professional career towards new multidisciplinary projects. I feel ready to embrace new responsibilities in even more challenging environments where I can truly be considered a valuable resource for the team.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Kind Regards,
Enrico Fattori
